A guide to your Viewing & Sales Session

After the shoot, I will arrange a time to meet up with you to show you your photos. To prepare yourself and to ensure the viewing is as smooth as possible, I ask you to consider the following:

Size: Contemplate where you would like the photos on display (e.g. album/folio box/wall art). If you are considering wall art, approximate available wall space in inches and make a note – this will help with decision making during the viewing.

Timescale: Please allow at least 90 minutes for the viewing so you can come to an informed decision. I do not want you to feel rushed, though I do ask that you complete your order at the viewing if possible.
I aim to deliver your order within 4 weeks, dependent on what products are ordered.

Investment: There are very few things you'll keep and treasure for the next 10-20 years. The images I capture and create are one of those things.
They are designed to last a lifetime, and so the products they are printed on should as well. Everything I offer has been handpicked from the best printing labs in the industry, and are built to last as long as they are taken good care of.

There is NO hard sell – there is no minimum spend, nor any obligation to purchase anything.

I want you to make a well-considered and informed decision that you are happy with, and I hope the above will help in achieving that.
